PHARMACOLOGY INSTRUCTOR

Position Description

Position Summary:

To provide instruction on pharmacology to students pursuing a nursing degree awarded from the Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing (NHWSN).

Responsibilities:

1. Plans course content to ensure that students learn pharmacology content needed for safe and effective nursing practice.
2. Establishes and fosters a learning environment which promotes individual and group interactions in order to enhance the learning experience and promote the development of critical thinking skills.
3. Evaluate student mastery of course content through exams, quizzes, and other assignments.
4. Selects student assignments that are appropriate for the course content and objectives to enhance the student learning experience; seeks opportunities for creative learning experiences for students
5. Provides constructive feedback for each student on all course assignments.
7. Provides Assistant Dean for BSN Education and/or Course Coordinator with timely updates regarding issues and/or concerns as related to student progress.

Requirements:

1. PharmD or PhD in Pharmacology.
2. Excellent interpersonal, communications (written and verbal) and presentation skills required.
3. Previous clinical education and/or teaching experience preferred.

Applications should be directed to Dr. Angela Amar, Assistant Dean for BSN Education. Please submit curriculum vitae and cover letter to angela.amar@emory.edu.

Applications will be accepted until May 30, 2014 or until position is filled.