"When In Doubt, Don’t Give Out"

1. Can I have access to all our students, and not just my assigned advisees or students in my classes?

   In all circumstances you will need to have a “legitimate educational need” to access records information. You are responsible to ensure a legitimate educational need exists.

2. What defines a legitimate educational interest?

   A faculty or staff member has a legitimate educational interest in accessing or reviewing a student’s education records, if the faculty or staff member is:

   - Performing a task that is specified in his/her position description or contract.
   - Performing a task related to a student's education or to student discipline.
3. What information collected and maintained by the University about a student am I as a faculty member permitted to see?

All faculty members have access to directory information. You may access other information in the educational record when you have a legitimate educational interest: that is when in the exercise or completion of your administrative, supervisory, academic, research or other administrative responsibilities on behalf of NHWSON, you incur the need to know specific information from those records. You must request specific information from the Associate Dean for Enrollment & Student Affairs & Chief Diversity Officer.

4. If a student restricts the release of his/her directory information, what happens when faculty requires the student’s email address (part of directory information) for class work and class discussions?

Restrictions on directory information do not apply to in-class communications. Students have no inherent right to anonymity in the classroom whether it's an online class or a physical classroom. When students are in a classroom it’s a given that they know each other’s names, emails and general information. It is good practice to notify students upfront (through course description, syllabus, in-class communication, etc.) that emails will be shared and that online discussion and communication will be a part of the nature of the class. No other education records information of a student should be shared by faculty with other students.

5. May I talk to another faculty member about a student’s education record?

Students’ education records may be discussed among faculty and campus officials as long as all parties have a legitimate educational interest. The information from the student's record discussed should ideally be needed in order for the school official to perform tasks that are relevant to his or her role.

6. Does FERPA allow a faculty member to speak to a parent or to another faculty or staff member when s/he thinks a student is in trouble?

FERPA does not prohibit faculty members from discussing their personal observations with parents or with other faculty/staff if the situation warrants such communication. However, we recommend that the faculty member talk with the Associate Dean for Enrollment & Student Affairs & Chief Diversity Officer before contacting other parties, 404-712-8541.

7. How can faculty members find out if a student has a history of violence or in some other way presents a danger to others?

If a faculty or staff member has a concern about a student, they should contact the Emory Police and/or the Associate Dean for Enrollment & Student Affairs & Chief Diversity Officer before contacting other parties, 404-712-8541.

8. Is it permissible to post student grades on my office door by using only a portion of student's social security number?

The public posting of grades either by the student's name, Student ID Number or social security number (whole or part of it), without the student's written permission, is a violation of

Revised 7/25/13
FERPA. Even with names obscured, numeric student identifiers are considered personally identifiable information and therefore violate FERPA.

9. Are there restrictions on returning assignments and examinations?

It’s a violation of FERPA for faculty to leave graded exams where students can see each other’s grades and work. Leaving personally identifiable, graded papers or examinations unattended for students to view is no different from posting grades in the hallway. Student's right to privacy of education records should be honored at all times.

10. What are “Sole Possession Notes” and do I have to release them to students if requested?

Sole possession notes are made by one person as an individual observation or recollection of a student, and are kept in the possession of the maker. Sole possession notes are not subject to FERPA regulations. However, sharing the notes with another person, or placing them in an area where they can be viewed by others makes them "education records" and become subject to FERPA.

11. Can I e-mail final grades to students?

If the email is being sent to each student one at a time and doesn’t include the grades and information of other students, then this is not considered a violation of FERPA. Notification of grades via e-mail is permissible. However, there is no guarantee of confidentiality. It’s preferable to send grades through regular US mail with the information enclosed in an envelope to ensure privacy.

12. May I include a student’s grade in a letter of recommendation that the student has asked me to write?

Statements made by a faculty making a recommendation that are made from that faculty's personal observation or knowledge do not require a written release from the student. However, if personally identifiable information obtained from a student's education record is included in the letter of recommendation (for example grades in the recommender's course(s), then you are required to obtain a signed release from the student. The release will need to specify the records that may be disclosed, state the purpose of the disclosure, and identify the party or class of parties to whom the disclosure can be made. This student release should be requested from the student prior to writing a letter of recommendation.

* Faculty are not required to maintain the letters of recommendation, but it is suggested that they do retain the permission letter for 6 months.

13. A father has called me about his daughter’s performance in my class. What can I tell him?

Progress in a course, deficiencies in a subject area, final grades, grades on exams, and other information about academic progress are examples of the confidential information that makes up part of a student's education record. This information is protected under FERPA and parents do not have access to it unless the student has provided consent to the release of this information. You can verify the parent's authorization to access the student's education record through OPUS. Contact the Office of the Registrar at 404-727-6042 to verify if the student has authorized access to the parents.
14. What if a parent tells me that he or she has already talked with the student and still has questions?

You will still need the student's consent to release any information to the parents. Only after you have confirmed the student's consent through OPUS, you may discuss a student's performance.

15. What about a spouse?

The spouse has no rights under FERPA to access the student's education record.

16. If a student asks for an explanation regarding his or her performance, can I compare the performance of the student asking for the explanation with the performance of other students?

No. Although a faculty member or teaching assistant can, of course, explain why a particular student performed well or poorly on a given examination or other assignment, in so doing the faculty member or teaching assistant should not discuss or make reference to the performance of other students. Disclosing information regarding another student jeopardizes that student's privacy rights.

17. How do I properly dispose of confidential information?

The business unit responsible for the personal information will arrange for the destruction of records containing student confidential information by shredding, erasing, or otherwise modifying the personal information to make the information unreadable or undecipherable through any means.

18. What about crisis situations or emergencies?

If non-directory information is needed to resolve a crisis or emergency situation, NHWSON may release that information if it determines it necessary to protect the health and safety of a student. However, if personally identifiable information about a student is needed, then the inquiring party should be referred to the Office of Enrollment and Student Affairs, 1520 Clifton Road Suite P10, 404-727-7980 or the University Registrar, 100 B. Jones Building, 404-727-6042. Efforts will be made to get word to the student of the emergency.

19. May I remove student files from the Office of Enrollment and Student Affairs?

No. To protect the confidentiality of student records and to implement the highest level of security of student information, files may not be copied or borrowed from the Office of Enrollment and Student Affairs. If there is a legitimate need to review student information, please contact a staff member in the Office of Enrollment and Student Affairs for assistance.

20. How can I further review and test my knowledge?

Please visit www.registrar.emory.edu/students/ferpa/ferpa_assessment.html

21. Whom do I contact with questions or concerns?

General questions may be directed to the Lynell Cadray, Associate Dean for Enrollment & Student Affairs & Chief Diversity Officer, 404-712-8541 or Sabrena Brown, Director of Registration and Registrar, 404-727-3500 or the University Registrar, 404-727-6042, or the Office of Legal Affairs.
